

School-Based Health Centers in NYC Public School

Many NYC public schools have health centers that students can use for a number services including getting Plan B®. However, the student must be a member of their school's health center to receive any kind of services there (students under the age of 18 need parental consent).

To find a school-based health center, look at the list below by borough; the schools are listed alphabetically. For more information about school based health centers, click here.
